Garden Club Notes

Prof. Arnold M. Davis of the Mass. State College at Amherst, gave a stereopticon lecture on the general up-keep of the garden, to the Northfield Garden Club in the Town Hall Monday evening, April 16th. The lecture was open to the public and while the audience was not large, owing to unfavorable weather, all were most enthusiastic.

Mr. Davis stressed the fact that in order to have 8 months bloom in our northern gardens, we must rely on annuals and bulbs as well as perennials. He told how to care for our common bulbs to obtain the best results, how to plant a rock garden and lily pool, as well as how to combat some of the most troublesome draw-bugs of our best loved garden flowers. At the close of the lecture, Mr. Davis answered questions on various problems brought forward by the audience.

Mr. Davis will be in Northfield again on May 14th when he will speak on garden pests and their remedies. The place of meeting will be announced later.

The Northfield Garden Club members are to have the privilege of borrowing books on Garden and Nature study from the Mass. State Library at Amherst. Books will be brought here, twenty-five at a time, and loaned in the same manner as regular library books. When these have been read, they will be returned and exchanged for twenty-five more. Members will please send in to the Secretary, Miss Blanche Corser, a short list of the subjects in which they are most interested. Please have your list in by April 23rd.

An interesting new service has been added to the many depositors' help at the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Greenfield.

It is now possible for any depositor to have a photographic record made of any cancelled check, which has gone through this bank. In order to accomplish this a photograph is taken of every check going through the bank.

This photograph is on a tiny film from which reprints can be made, exact size of original check or it can be projected on the wall for inspection. This gives each depositor the protection of having every check he draws available in case of dispute. In other banks it has frequently saved patrons actual loss and much annoyance.

The Northfield Herald has presented to Boy Scout Troop No. 9 a one year subscription to Popular Mechanics. Any one having back copies of this or similar publications which they are willing to give to the boys may call The Herald office 230-3 and someone will call for them.

The total number of cases to date being 102. Arrangements are being made for the installation of an X-ray machine which will add to the effectiveness of this institution.

Northfield Players

The Northfield Players are busily engaged in putting on the finishing touches for the performance of "A Pair of Sixes" which is to be repeated Tuesday April 24 at Hinsdale as an American Legion benefit.

Father And Son Night

The April Meeting of the Brotherhood was held Tuesday evening at North Church. This meeting was the Annual Father and Son Night and the increased attendance showed that this feature is gaining in popularity each year.

The supper was enjoyed by all the boys regardless of age and all the Ice Cream was not consumed by the younger generation although they did give their "Dad" something to shoot at when it came to putting away food.

A young gentleman answering to the name of Herbert who occupied the seat opposite this writer certainly complimented the cook, and reports from the other tables are that this bracing Spring air is having its effect upon the young appetites.

After a short business session presided over by Pres. L. L. Norton the meeting was again turned back to the boys and Pitt Parker, Cartoonist, presented his newest Lecture entitled "Where Do We Go From Here?" Mr. Parker, who has appeared here before, held the interest of the boys to a remarkable degree. He knew his subject and he knew his boys. When the call was sent out for a volunteer assistant the response was unanimous.

During the business session resolutions on the death of the late Rev. Herbert E. Buffum were adopted. Mr. Buffum was a member of the Brotherhood.

The May Meeting of the Brotherhood will be held on May 22nd. A week later than the usual date.

High School Dance

Members of the Senior Class are working faithfully to put over their dance at Town Hall next Wednesday night. Every member of the class has tickets and all who are planning to attend are requested to buy their tickets early.

Tickets will be sold at the door of course, but every early sale gives renewed courage to the young folks so get yours now! Music will be furnished by the Musical Bargeons.

Electric Refrigerator

Electric Refrigerators have become so much a part of present day good housekeeping that manufacturers are constantly looking for better ways to aid the housewife in preserving foods. One of the newest helps is found in the Crosley which has the Shelvador, a unique shelf arrangement for holding fruit, eggs, bacon etc.

The new hymnbook used in the two school chapels is the new Presbyterian Hymnal with a 24 page Northfield Supplement containing 21 selected hymns.

Mrs. W. R. Moody entertained the Hermon Alumni Council at a Fellowship Breakfast at the Homestead last Sunday morning. Including several wives, 29 sat down at the tables. Family prayers, the singing of a few favorite hymns, and an informal meeting were features of the affair.

"NOT FOR JUST A DAY— BUT ALWAYS"

Last week we told you how good the Herald was in selling Merchandise. We quoted the sale of 5 tons of Hay by Dr. Richard Holton.

To be sure that this sale wasn't just a flash in the pan, the good Doctor gave us a Dump Wagon to sell for him and The Herald sold it. When we were told about this sale we thought of the song, our old Buddy wrote, "Not For Just a Day—But Always." What can we sell for you. Most Classified Ads cost only 25c per week.

EDITORIAL

The past few weeks has seen an unusual investigation in Washington.

Dr. Wirt an Indiana schoolmaster was called upon to defend his statements that "The Brain Truststers" were casting Pres. Roosevelt in the role of a Kerensky while they continued their plans for an Economic Revolution in the United States.

One of the names mentioned foremost by those in the know at Washington, as one of the "Plotters," is Dr. Tugwell. This ardent member of the Brain Trust has filled a varied role in the present administration. One day he is the fair-haired boy and the next day he has picked up his dolls in a peeve and gone on a trip. His pet bill which was on the surface, a health measure is one of the greatest menaces to a free press which has so far been seen. It would strange advertising. There is no doubt that Dr. Tugwell is a dangerous man regardless of his status as a "plotter."

The President has seemed particularly unfortunate in some of his advisers. Whoever suggested the cancellation of the Air Mail Contracts and the entry of the Army into a job they were not equipped for surely did him a disservice.

The reason for President Wilson's "rugged individualism" while he was President becomes apparent now. Wilson seldom took advice. He knew his Democrats.

New Moody Biography

The Herald is indebted to Charles Scribner's Sons for permission to publish this new Biography of Dwight Lyman Moody as it will appear in The Dictionary of American Biography to be issued this month.

This Biography will run in the Herald for the next two or three weeks.

Ed.

Moody visited Great Britain in 1867 and again in 1870, to get acquainted with Christian leaders there and to study their methods.
In June 1878, at the invitation of British friends, he embarked for a third visit, this time to conduct evangelistic services. He took with him Mrs. D. Sankey (q.v.), organist and singer, who had been helping him as chorister in the Sunday school and church at Chicago. Beginning quietly at York, the evangelists labored for five months in the north of England, awakening such interest that they were invited to Edinburgh. Here they succeeded in enlisting the cooperation of ministers and university men of both the Church of Scotland and the Free Church in a series of meetings which continued for more than two months. Many professed conversion or a quickening of spiritual life; ecclesiastical party issues sank to a place of relative unimportance; reports of the meetings were given increasing place in the public and religious press; even the traditional Scottish antipathy to the use of instrumental music in the worship of God gave way before Sankey's organ. After Edinburgh, a similar extensive and successful series of meetings was conducted in Glasgow; then four months were devoted to preaching, for shorter periods, in various places throughout Scotland. In September 1874 the evangelists landed in Ireland, where they labored for three months, receiving a warm welcome both at Belfast and at Dublin. The following winter months were devoted to meetings in Manchester, Sheffield, Birmingham, and Liverpool. The work of the evangelists culminated in a four months' mission in London, conducted in the largest buildings available in each of five sections of the city. In the course of this London mission 285 meetings were held, attended by an estimated total of 2,530,000 people.

Moody and Sankey returned to America in August 1875. Their visit to Great Britain had been prolonged to more than two years, and they had been the instruments in a religious awakening comparable only to that under the preaching of Wesley and Whitefield.
They had gone unheralded; they returned in a blaze of public curiosity and interest, which brought them many more invitations than they could accept. Moody went quietly to Northfield, where he henceforth made his home. Here, in this comparatively remote Massachusetts town, he conducted a two weeks' series of meetings; then, with excellent strategy, he selected Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and New York as the cities in which to undertake evangelistic campaigns in the fall and winter of 1875-76. Careful preliminary organization, the ensured cooperation of the churches, judicious advertising and generous publicity, admission by freely distributed tickets, and well-planned methods of handling the throngs that attended the meetings, helped to clear the way for the full persuasive effect of Moody's preaching and Sankey's music. Their success in these American cities was as notable as in Great Britain.

WHETHER they cook for a food sale or for their families, electric range owners soon acquire reputations for being good cooks.

Things cooked electrically taste better because cooking conditions are CONSTANT in the electric range. The oven temperature control means just what it says—that the heat is controlled at the point where the indicator is set, and that the heat is the same this time as last time —and the time before that. Three-heat switches provide accurate control of the surface units.

It's small wonder, with this accurate control of electricity's fast, clean heat, why things cooked electrically are always good.

You'll find the dependability of the electric range only one of many worthwhile advantages. Investigate electric cookery now!

When the cornerstone was laid for the new post office building in Chattanooga, Tenn., W. M. Sapp, Junior Grand Deacon of the Grand Lodge of Georgia, who represented Grand Master William Clark on that occasion, obtained five grains of corn from that deposited in the stone. These grains were given to Lawrence E. Cline, a member of Dalton Lodge No. 105, Dalton, Ga., and a farmer, with the understanding that he plant them and report the results to Mr. Sapp.

All of these grains matured stalks producing seven well developed ears, except one which was destroyed by a cut worm. The seven ears weighed nearly four pounds and contained 5,000 well matured grains. Running true to its name "Masonic Mission" corn, it yielded the mystic number of seven ears at the first planting.

"Masonic Mission" corn derives its name from the proposal that members of the Craft plant it and devote the proceeds of the second crop to Masonic charity. Fifty grains of the 5,000 will be given to any Mason will undertake to carry out that idea. They may be had from William M. Sapp, Dalton, Ga. Only 100 Masons can participate in this unique plan during the forthcoming year.

THE BOOK CORNER

The New Dealers Reviewed by Sherwood Anderson

You are always curious about an anonymous book. Who wrote it? At any rate, this book was written by a friend, or by friends, of the New Dealers. It is a newspaper man's (or men's) job. I asked a man who is rather on the inside down there. "I wouldn't tell if I knew," he said. "It often happens, a man gets on the inside, writes a book and then, 'baner'—out he goes."

It is a good, clearly written book. Better not take it all in a heap. Keep it by you. There are a lot of sympathetically written portraits of men we are intensely interested in just now. If you try to take them all in at once you get too much. There is this parade of men, and a few women, across the pages—clever men, sincere, honest men, sharp politicians, stupid men, determined men.

The best thing I can say about the book is that it made me feel as though I had just come home from a visit to Washington. The book has caught the air, the feeling of Washington since the capital was moved back down there. For such a long time New York was the nation's real capital and Washington was a shut-in, mysterious place. When you went to Washington and into one of the government buildings you felt as though you were in a cave or in a vault of a bank. The whole place had that curious feel you get when you go into a bank. You know what I mean. The ordinary man never gets over it. It's like a church—only they don't worship God in the church. They worship money.

This book succeeds in something. It convinces you that the time of all that has definitely passed. There is a kind of open frankness, doors open, the wind blowing in, the feeling of Washington itself nowadays.

If you are against the New Dealers and don't like them and what they are up to, or think they are up to, you won't like the book. I like it because I like to know men and women, and these men and women of the so-called New Deal are such important figures in our lives just now.

And here they are, in this book, about as real as any writer can ever make them. The book gives you that feeling. It is Washington as it is just now.

Has there ever been a time since the American government began functioning when Washington, and the men and women in power there, were so important to all of us?

It's going to Washington, sitting in offices, listening in, it's a corking job but don't take it all in a heap. There are just a few too many figures crowded into its pages.

Some of the chapters are: Utopia On Tap, which deals with Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and the new "initial" group—P.W.A., C.W.A., T.V.A.; The Praetorian Guard, which tells of Mrs. Roosevelt, Col. Howe and others on the White House staff; Fallen Angels, dealing with Huey Long, Al Smith, and the Democratic lobbyists.

Ford Service

For over 30 years, the Ford Motor Company has been building cars and trucks. To date, they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars and trucks.

From the time the first Ford cars were delivered, the Ford Motor Company has taught mechanics how to care for the cars—that is how Ford Service began which is now found everywhere in the Entire World.

Mr. Henry Ford believed, from the beginning, that a sale does not complete the transaction with a customer. He says that it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

In order to continually bring the standard of Ford Service to the Highest Plane, the Ford Motor Company keeps a great many Traveling Service Schools on the road in addition to a permanent Instruction School at the various Assembly Plants—both providing places for mechanical instruction on major and general service for Ford Dealers' mechanics and Service Managers.

When a man buys a Ford car, he shows Confidence in the Ford Organization. When he comes to a Ford Dealer for Service, he expresses Confidence in their ability to advise him and efficiently service his car.

Both the Ford Motor Company and Ford Dealers everywhere have more than a mutual interest in these owners,—both wish to render them Prompt and Satisfactory Service.

This Traveling School of Instruction, equipped with the latest precision tools and manned by a highly trained technician travels to Ford Dealers' places of business to render the necessary training to their Service Managers and mechanics and also to the mechanical service departments of our many Fleet Owners in their territory, to assure every individual owner and Fleet Owner the best of Service.

Spencer Bros. extend an invitation to anyone interested to inspect this Service School upon its arrival.

As was said by a famous Roman Senator upon closing his every speech, "Carthago delenda est." So say we in all articles touching upon the need of education: A Department of Education must be created if education is to assume its rightful status in American life. The average citizen, must be prepared for an intelligent understanding of current problems affecting his individual and social welfare.

Seminary News Notes

The first of three senior Toss to be given by Miss Fanny Hatch, Alumnae Secretary, was held last Friday. The second is taking place this afternoon and the third is scheduled for next Friday. Miss Hatch has invited the entire senior class in three groups to inspect her office in Kenarden Hall after which tea is served at the Birthplace.

Tree Day practices have started at the Seminary. The annual Tree Day is to be May 14 this year.

Dr. Boyd Edwards, headmaster of Mercersburg Academy, Chambersburg, Pa., was the speaker at both the morning service and vespers at Sage Chapel last Sunday. Dr. Edwards' text in the morning was "Ideas Only Through Experience," and in the evening he spoke on "Cost and Value."

Gaylord Douglas of the New England National Council for Prevention of War was the speaker in Sage Chapel, Saturday morning, April 14. Mr. Douglas gave the following suggestions for students concerning their part in war prevention.

First, one must have a knowledge of international problems. Only people who are intelligent about international affairs can ever hope to take any part in the prevention of another war.

Second, one must learn to think in world terms.

Third, one must learn to face facts.

And last of all each person must do his part to influence public opinion.

After chapel Mr. Douglas led a discussion with an American History class in Palmer Hall. Mr. Douglas attended Mount Hermon and is an Alumni Counsellor.

Mr. Albert E. Roberts, executive secretary of the Northfield Schools, spoke in Sage Chapel, Tuesday morning, April 17, on "Living Up to Our New Catalog." He referred to the new catalog recently issued by both the Seminary and Mt. Hermon and suggested that a great deal of devotion and co-operation was needed on the part of students, faculty, and alumnae to live up to the schools as portrayed in these publications.

Last Saturday was "Club Night," when the campus Club held forth. Among the interesting gatherings was that of Sigma Delta, sophomore dramatic club, who witnessed a puppet show given by the club's officers assisted by Miss Virginia Wells of the faculty. The show was entitled "The Man and His Dumb Wife." Those who took part were: Virginia Sias, president; Lillian Edwards, vice-president; Yvonne Gregory, treasurer; and Eleanor Bass, secretary. Sigma Delta gave a very fine presentation of Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" earlier in the year.

The faculty still maintains a strict silence on the subject of their dramatic effort scheduled for Saturday night. It is known that frequent rehearsals are taking place in Silverthorne but a highly efficient sergeant-at-arms prevents further information from leaking out.
